The Pastor Speaks

Rev. Thomas Waddill

(This week we have a guest writer, Chaplain Edward O. Temple, Jr., recently appointed Chaplain at Lynchburg General Hospital. I have asked him to write a follow-up article on the series I did recently on visiting in the hospital.)

A major article on total patient care has recently been made in the services offered to all patients by Lynchburg General Hospital. It is simply that the hours of strain on the patients have been reduced from seven hours a day to two hours a day. "Visiting hours" have been changed to 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. daily.

Here are some helpful hints as to conducting visits in our hospital.

Our visiting policies were established with the patient in mind. The patient is here because he is either ill or injured, and is in need of the services we have to offer. Part of this service is rest and part will be performed by the hospital staff and physicians. The following policies were adopted that our patients may receive the services mentioned in a prompt and efficient manner.

1. Visiting hours — 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. daily.

2. No children under 12 years of age.

3. No more than two persons visiting at one time with the exception of the nearest relative

4. Visits should be limited to 15 minutes.

5. The nearest relative may be granted a permanent pass through the Admitting office, which can be used from 8:30 a.m to 9:00 p.m.

6. We believe each patient should have the opportunity to eat his meal immediately upon being served, not only because it can be appetizing if so eaten, but for therapeutic values. The patient may be hesitant to eat with visitors present, thus we request that visitors wait in the lounge while meals are being served.

7. Obstetrical patients — For the protection of new-born babies, we request that no visitors remain in the room during the baby's feeding time.

8. Frequently, because of the patient's condition, it is necessary to institute a "No Visitor" regulation which includes a sign on the door. Under no circumstances should a visitor enter a so marked. Information concerning the patient should be obtained either from the nursing station or the information clerk.

9. Often during visiting hours, it is necessary for treatment to be given or for the physician to visit the patient. When such occurs the patient should be afforded complete privacy; thus all visitors should leave the room immediately.

If you have a special situation ask the nursing supervisor about it. She will be happy to help you.

No set pattern exists as to "How" you should conduct yourself except that of being considerate, courteous, and understanding. The patient is sick (or else he wouldn't be in the hospital), and his welfare is the primary concern of all involved. Smoking, loud - taling, and bad manners in general are to be avoided, especially where these are harmful to the patient's well-being.

In order to make your visit meaningful, let the patient know your concern; be brief, thus sharing the time with others who are visiting; and leave quietly so that others remain undisturbed.

Being remembered is very important; and a pleasant visit is remembered for a long time to come.

Edward O. Temple, Jr., Chaplain
Lynchburg General Hospital

He Was Tempted

Lesson for January 10, 1965

Where and how is a man most likely to be tempted? When you start to answer this, you will discover that while temptations to meet a person anywhere, any time, he is most open to temptation right in the area of his strongest interests. A man who is ambitious to hold public office will be strongly tempted to compromise or to lie in order to use his ambitions come true. A woman who could not ordinarily be tempted to do a mean thing, may be tempted to meanness — even to covetousness, lying, and theft — for the sake of her children. Where the heart is there the temptations will be. Jesus illustrates this rule. We understand his temptations better if we understand them as questions in the area of his moral interest, the strange question which he had begun to establish. He knew there was no kingdom, knew he was to be a king . . . but how?

Three Blind Alleys

Jesus desired the Kingdom above all things. Seek it first, he said later to his friends; and he sought it first always. But what kind of king, what kind of kingdom? In the first temptation (following the order in Luke) he is tempted to turn stones into bread, . . . but Jesus declined to follow the tempter's line. He would not work miracles to show that not even to gain the hearing he must have. Then he was tempted to fall down and worship the tempter himself; practically he meant borrowing the devil's methods to accomplish God's purposes. An easy temptation that has ruined many; but Jesus would not give in to it.

He Was Tempted

In later weeks we shall have to think of what kind of kingdom he really desired. Right now let us give another look at the temptations. The first thing to be observed is that Jesus was really tempted. Now you cannot expect me to try to high-jump over a barn. You can't tempt me to eat moldy bacon-rind, it's disgusting. No man can be tempted to do something he knows very well he can't do, or to do something it sickens him to think of. A real temptation has to urge you to do something you can do and something that looks attractive at the time.

The Good Versus the Best

But if Jesus was perfectly good, how could he be tempted with anything bad? The point is that some of the temptations were not to do bad things at all. He was tempted to create food, to give the people something to admire, to give a public demonstration of the protecting power of God. These were good deeds, not bad. The hidden trap was: these were not the best. What the best was, we can see from later studies in Matthew. The point now is that if Jesus had yielded, in each case he would have found himself in a blind alley, one that did not lead to the true Kingdom of God. Some one has said that the good is the enemy of the best. To accept the good when the best is possible, is to give in to a common temptation.
